A TOUCH OF TLC FOR THE CORONATION STREET ACTOR'S WEDDING

The Manchester based UK events planner, Liz Taylor of Taylor Lynn Corporation (TLC), has seen an encouraging 20% increase in wedding enquiries over the summer, was herself busy planning the wedding of television presenters Eamonn Holmes and Ruth Langsford in July, and has now announced that she will be the creative brains behind another of the north west's "big days" with the organization of Coronation Street actor Simon Gregson's wedding to fiancée Emma Gleave next year.

"I am thrilled to be planning this special day with Simon and Emma" commented Liz Taylor

"As with all TLC events I am working with the couple to create a truly unique day that matches and then exceeds all their expectations about a dream wedding – and which is, of course, filled with surprises for the couple and their celebrity guests."

Liz added: "I think the media coverage of the Chelsea Clinton and Robbie Williams weddings have really helped to bring wedding plans to the forefront for lots of couples and has definitely played a part in the upturn in enquiries that we have seen over the summer."

In spite of the recession couples are still keen to tie-the-knot and want a special day to celebrate the occasion. Weddings are most definitely seeing a resurgence!"

In 2008 Liz Taylor steered TLC through an amicable buy-out of business partner Dianne Lynn and the business now provides employment for numerous event entertainers, caterers, casual event staff and other suppliers to its hundreds of events throughout the year. TLC has organised over 500 weddings, has increased its profits by 15% from 2008/2009 and Liz has much to celebrate and look forward to, not least to organizing events for the 50th anniversary celebrations of Britain's favourite soap, Coronation Street.
