LEADING MANCHESTER EVENT PLANNER TO APPEAR IN NEW BBC PROGRAMME

The award winning Manchester based events and wedding planner, Liz Taylor of the Taylor Lynn Corporation (TLC), is celebrating her 25th year in the events industry by appearing in a new programme for the BBC, Working Girls, which premieres on 3rd March 2011 on BBC Three.

In each episode of Working Girls, which is produced by Remarkable Television (an Endemol company), two different girls with a non-existent work ethic will be teamed with two hugely successful self-made business women who have worked extremely hard to get where they are today.

Over an eight day period at the end of last year one of the girls had to prove her worth by satisfying Liz Taylor's tough working demands and performance levels in her busy events management company, where multi tasking skills and a strong commitment to the job are essential attributes for any employee.

"I was thrilled to take part in the programme and I hope, to provide an opportunity for at least one young woman to change her attitude to work and show her what the rewards can be if you apply some dedication to your job", says Liz Taylor of TLC

"There were inevitable highs and lows mixed with more than a few challenges and emotional moments during the time I spent with the girl. The chance to make a difference to someone's life is one I wouldn't have missed for the world though - and it will certainly make for fabulous viewing!"

Each girl will go on a journey of self discovery that takes them from ignorance and apathy to empowerment and appreciation. Along the way, they will also discover an ancestor from their past who has achieved something monumental in the work place. Through sheer guts and determination, these women worked extremely hard to achieve equality - its time to take inspiration from their ancestors and get back to work!

As well as whipping these lazy ladies into shape, their mentors will play a key role as a champion for independent women through the ages who were prepared to work hard for their rewards.

Will their own personal history motivate the girls to raise their game and change their lives forever? Will they learn any lessons and realise their full potential? Will they make it to lunch?

Expect tears, tantrums, and explosive tension as we get these girls off the sofa and into work!

-Ends-
