LIZ TAYLOR SAYS "I DO" FOR EAMONN HOLMES AND MANCHESTER'S MOOD SWINGS CHARITY

Manchester based party organiser Liz Taylor of Taylor Lynn Corporation (TLC), said "I do" four times this weekend, having planned a series of back to back weddings across the UK, including the lavish London wedding on Saturday of television presenter Eamonn Holmes and Ruth Langsford. All before a fast car back to Manchester in time to put the final touches on a VIP reception for nearly a hundred local business leaders at Great John Street Hotel last night in support of the North West mental health charity, Mood Swings.

"It's all in the planning and attention to detail" said Liz

" We have been working for months on making each event a VIP day and having 24 years experience under my belt and a great team to support me, the hectic schedule was kept on track and each wedding felt 100% special. The Mood Swings reception was a great occasion to be associated with and a wonderful way to finish off a very, very busy weekend!"

Liz has joined forces with the North West mental health charity, Mood Swings, as part of TLC's 15th anniversary celebrations this year and the VIP evening was hosted by actress Jennie McAlpine, one of the charity's most ardent supporters. Guests also included the Lord Lieutenant of Manchester Warren Smith and leading lights in Manchester's business, media and sporting communities.

The evening was supported with sponsorship from Selfridges, Barratt Event Caterers and the party's venue, Great John Street, and raised awareness amongst the Manchester business sector of the work that the charity undertakes in the region.

Mood Swings offers free confidential information, advice and support to those with severe mood disorders, their families, friends, and health & social care professionals.
